

WEEK 4 NEWSLETTER

SYMPOSIUM

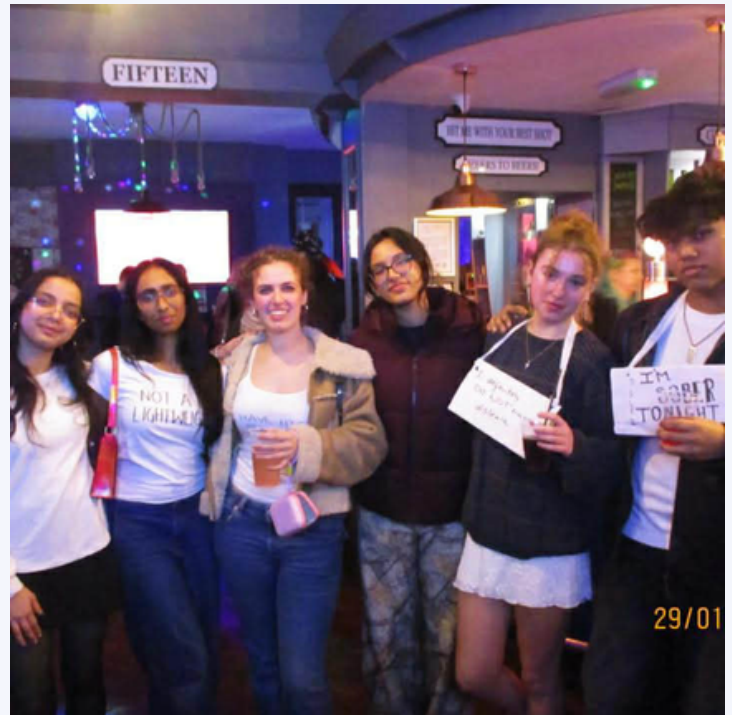

PPE Society hosted one of our biggest events of the year, a joint Symposium collaborating with multiple top PPE societies from around the country:

The event, sponsored by SRLV, kicked off with a careers panel with achievers (mainly from Warwick!!) from across Law, Finance and Consulting. After lunch, we hosted an entertaining debate on populism with academics discussing the past, present and future of populism in the UK and beyond, especially since the financial crash. With the heated discussion, the debate brought into light many important populist ideas and criticisms.

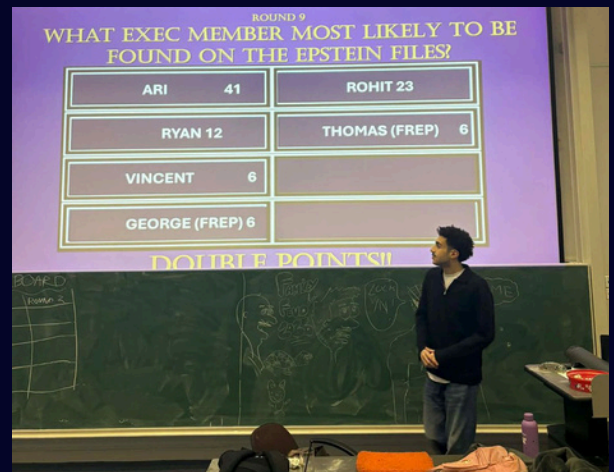

Bar Crawl

What's your White Lie 🤔? That was the theme on Thursday evening's bar crawl!! Kicking off in T-Bar and wrapping it up in The Old Library, PPE Soc travelled to Leamington for a night of bar hopping fun. Everyone rocked white tees with their "white lie" written across them.

Family Feud

PPE Society hosted its famous annual Family Feud quiz night to much fanfare, with Bassel giving his very best impression of Steve Harvey. With some very controversial team names and questions on display, the quiz got off to a lively start. Although Brown, Browner, Brownest answered the majority of questions, rival teams were quick to swoop in and steal points whenever answers were left unfinished. In the end, Ryan & Anna's team, Epstein's Angels, claimed the top spot, followed closely by Ari and Tabby's Daddy Chill. A chaotic, competitive, and thoroughly entertaining night all round! 🎉🎊

EVENTS TO WATCH OUT FOR IN WEEK 4

PPE Society in collaboration with WIE, HistSoc and EconSoc welcome Juan Castañeda, the director of the Vinson Centre and Senior Lecturer of Economics at the University of Buckingham 🎓

We highly recommend this talk for those interested in learning more about our dynamic macroeconomy 🙌
